

Avonworth Indoor Drum Line

Places 3rd in Eastern United States Competition

Pittsburgh, PA- The Avonworth Indoor Drum Line with its “Layers of Darkness” show, placed 3rd in the Eastern United States Tournament of Band (TOB) competition. The TOB is one of the largest competitive band organizations in the country, with more than 400 active schools.

The students of the Indoor Drum Line dressed in costumes and used make-up to look like zombies. Through their musical performance, they were able to defeat an evil wizard who had placed them all under a spell.

The Indoor Drum Line competed at the Scholastic Novice level, which included teams from North Carolina, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and West Virginia. The competition took place in Wildwood, New Jersey April 30th through May 3rd.

The Avonworth Color Guard also performed a show called Skyline Firedance – using flags, sabers, rifles and dance. All teams were split into different classes according to skills and type of performance. The Avonworth team competed against 22 different high schools in the Scholastic Intermediate A level.
